

PostScript

George Bush, who is a former almost everything, recently told the American Petroleum Institute: "I have just returned from a fantastic trip to China . . . inflation is not under control, a high government official was recently thrown out, the military feels it is not getting the funds it needs to keep the country strong, the new leadership is not as forceful as some would have felt—indeed, the masses are restless. To tell the truth, things aren't a helluva lot better in China either."